WAR DIARY OF THE 86TH FIGHTER GROUP AAF (Continued)

- Group Headquarters -

Poretta Airfield, Corsica

July 1944

Fourth Week: 23 - 29

- 23 Major General Jones and his staff visited and inspected the group. The group has flown its 1,500th mission and its 14,000th sortie since 6 July 1943. The officers and enlisted men have been sending laundry out, and one of the natives returned this evening demanding anywhere from $7 up for a barracks bag of laundry - for example, 6¢ for a handkerchief and 60¢ for coveralls. We paid her and also threw her out of our area.
- 24 Capt. Louis and Lt. Garber went to the 87th Wing. Took pictures of pilots in civilian clothes.
- 25 The enlisted men have set up an all-screened dining room - a considerable improvement on the old one. The group picked up 30 new pilots from the 19th Replacement. Capt. Gross, Group Special Service Officer, finished working on the group's citation and will deliver same to TAC.
- 26 Col. Kofahl and Lt. Col. Mullins addressed new pilots. Group Ordnance is having gun inspection.
- 27 The group is back in the saddle again; today we flew 6 missions and 71 sorties with our P-47's. Destroyed 3 Ju-52's, 3 W/V's, created road blocks, damaged RR bridges and buildings. One of the 526th Sq. pilots bailed out over the sea, was rescued by ASR and returned to outfit same day uninjured. He wants to resume flying tomorrow.
- 28 Lt. Col. Nevitt visited. Col. Bates flew with 526th as observer.
- 29 The 526th Sq. had another field day. They attacked an enemy airdrome in the Milan area, destroying 23 and damaging 10 enemy two-engine and single-engine aircraft. This is the type of missions that builds up the group morale. The pilots who participated in the mission were anxious to refuel their aircraft and go over the same target. Diana, the Red Cross girl, visited the line, passing out doughnuts and coffee.

Last two days of month, 30 - 31

- 30 The group received a commendation from Col. Darcy on yesterday's missions.
A B-26 crashed on our field this afternoon. The aircraft is a total wreck, but the crew came out all safe. The resultant damage to the runway forced the group to call off its last two missions.
The group is stood down for several days while engineers lay matting on the field.
- 31 All who are able to take off during the group stand-down have been traveling through the towns of Corsica. The most scenic drive on the island is around Cape Corse and along the northwest coast. Some have taken the beautiful trans-island highway through the mountains to Ajaccio, the capital, for a look, among other things, at Napoleon's birthplace.

86th FIGHTER-BOMBER GROUP FLIES 14,000 SORTIES

Fifteen hundred combat missions and 14,000 sorties in just over a year's time is the record of the 86th Fighter-Bomber Group of which Colonel Harold E. Aefahl, of Fellows, California, is commanding officer.

Now engaged in cutting rail lines, destroying bridges and generally disrupting the German supply and communications system, the group, working in close support of Allied ground forces in northern Italy, has established an enviable record.

Flying its first mission on 6 July 1943, out of Korba, Tunisia, they were the first to go into combat with A-36 Invaders and it was largely due to their early efforts that the full tactical use of the plane was realized. First used in the softening up of Sicily before the invasion, they later supported the Seventh Army during the Sicilian campaign. Six days after the Salerno landing, the group was operating from a beachhead airdrome under fire and closely followed the fall of Naples by establishing a base near there.

In the now famous "Operation Strangle" in Italy from 11 May to 7 June, the group flew from 50 to 90 sorties daily directed at rail and road communications, and were particularly successful operating against German troop and supply concentrations during the enemy withdrawal northward. Trucks, buses and other means of transport the Germans were using to evacuate, suffered greatly under the fire of the group as well as did large numbers of horses being used to draw artillery pieces.

When Rome fell, the group required only six days to move forward and begin operations from a new base. On another occasion since, the group flight echelon arrived at a new base in the morning and that afternoon the first mission had been completed from that base.

During its 1,500 missions, 5,000 tons of bombs have been dropped and 3,000,000 rounds of 50-caliber ammunition fired.

A total of 2,572 enemy vehicles was destroyed and an additional 2,405 damaged, 1,714 damaged and 46 locomotives were completely knocked out and 35 damaged.

Shipping was not neglected, as two transports, three freighters, two destroyers and one light cruiser were probably sunk and another ten craft of various types damaged.

Although primarily used as fighter-bombers, the group nevertheless, accounted for 23 enemy aircraft shot down and 23 damaged.

Lieutenant Colonel James K. Thomas, of 11 Morwood Road, Charleston, West Virginia, attorney general of the state, on leave from his duties for the duration, is executive officer for the group.

The following is a sharp and piercing analysis by War Correspondent John Laner, written for the New York Herald-Tribune, on the entertainment of troops in the Italian Theater.

"Professional entertainers — good ones, too — have come to Italy, to perform for American troops at the front lines and bases here, but there are flaws in the talent supply system — almost certainly originating at home — which have led to various degrees of fiasco in the cases of George Raft, Kay Francis, Eddie Foy, Adolphe Menjou and several other performers, most of them highly competent under the proper conditions.

Mostly, entertainment difficulties here can be traced to miscasting at home — miscasting physically as well as in terms of material. Eddie Foy, for instance, one of the deans of American vaudeville, is violently allergic to airplane travel. It is nearly impossible to meet bookings in this area except by plane. Foy missed a number of shows. Troops misunderstood the situation, which was created in the first place by a misunderstanding of conditions by the talent exporters in America.

Kay Francis, most noted for stately drama against lavish Hollywood backdrops, was sent here as a comedian with a string of quick gags she had to memorize on the plane coming over. She did not exactly roll them in the aisles. Adolphe Menjou, one of the shrewdest and most resourceful of dramatic performers, was sent as a monologist. His act was poorly received by the troops and had to be saved by the overnight enlistment of Miss Tony Mason, a local Red Cross worker who can sing.

As against this, Bob Hope, one of the smoothest and most gifted solo performers in the world, was equipped with lavish props and auxiliaries, including Frances Langford and Jack Pepper, practically a show in themselves. Menjou could have used them. Hope did not need them.

George Raft played three of fifteen scheduled appearances because of a cold the Army ended up by cancelling his engagement and substituting Harry Barris, a pianist and singer who once was Bing Crosby's partner in the Rhythm Boys. About the work and willingness of Barris and of June Clyde and Louise Albritton, who were originally booked to appear with Raft and were told by Raft not to appear unless he did, the local Army people and soldiers are enthusiastic.

Col. Meyer who heads Special Service in Italy, says that steady, competent performers, especially vaudevillians, are more successful and cooperative generally than stars. "Things are tough here," says the colonel. "Under those ballroom dresses those girls wear long GI underwear. They have to. We need real troupers here, and when we get them the boys appreciate their stuff more than any other kind of entertainment."

MEMORANDUM )
NO. 45-1 )

INTELLIGENCE AND PUBLIC RELATIONS

Historical Program

1. In compliance with IBS Memo 125-2 and XI Bomber Command Memo 45-1, each squadron will appoint a Historical Officer, who will, in addition to his other duties, prepare and forward monthly, a historical report on the activities of his unit. The history will be forwarded to this Headquarters in triplicate not later than 1700 on the 2nd day of each month.

2. Among the subjects providing material for unit histories are changes in living conditions and morale, changes in key personnel, movement of a substantial part of the unit, actual functioning of the unit, its efficiency in accomplishment of its mission, problems faced and the methods used to solve them and individual exploit or achievement.

3. Statements in histories will be supported wherever possible by documentary exhibits such as orders, charts and photographs.

4. It is recommended that Historical Officers maintain a diary of events within their unit so as to facilitate the prompt preparation of a full report.

5. Reports will be concerned with fact rather than literary style. However they will be organized in such fashion as to render them readable and understandable. The following is quoted from XI Bomber Command Memo 45-1:

"Historics will be written in narrative style and will not consist of a mere checking of the sub-heading on some form. The recording of the activities of the units of this command will cover all noteworthy occurrences of historical interest and will constitute a properly substantial story of fact, quite apart from any outline of topical guide. However a high degree of organization is necessary to present the facts in a clear and unified manner. Common sense and the sense of what is historically important are the cardinal facts."

6. Reports will usually be classified SECRET, depending upon the nature of the material they contain. They will be forwarded with letter of Transmittal addressed to Commanding General, Army Air Forces, Washington, 25, D.C. (Through Channels).

GENERAL ORDERS )

27 August 1944.

NUMBER 14 )

CITATION OF UNIT

Under the provisions of Circular 333, War Department, 1943, and Circular 89, North African Theater of Operations, 10 July 1944, the 86th Fighter Group is cited for outstanding performance of duty in armed conflict with the enemy.

The 86th Fighter Group is cited for outstanding performance of duty in action against the enemy in the Mediterranean Theater of Operations on 25 May 1944. After the Allied armies had broken the enemy's seven-month stand before Cassino, Italy, and were threatening his flank from the Anzio Beachhead, powerful German forces attempted to reform on a line between Frascati and Tivoli, where they proposed to stop the Allied advance short of Rome. To disrupt this strategic maneuver, the 86th Fighter Group was ordered, on 25 May 1944, to maintain continuous armed reconnaissance of all roads leading from the front to the projected defense line. Although the majority of their fifty A-36's and P-40's had been flown over 400 combat hours on more than 200 combat missions and had been subjected, in almost a year's service, to the dust and heat of North Africa as well as to the terrific strain of vertical diving, the ground personnel, through indefatigable and resourceful effort, had every plane prepared for an all-out effort by daylight. Taking off at 0650 hours on 25 May, the first flight began a grueling battle with enemy transport, diving through intense accurate anti-aircraft fire to bomb traffic, effect road blocks and create confusion, repeatedly returning at minimum altitude to strafe the streams of enemy reconnaissance cars, personnel carriers, trucks, tanks, and horse-drawn artillery moving to the rear. When the final four-ship flight landed that night at 2020 hours, the Group had, in 12 missions and 86 sorties, destroyed 217 and damaged 245 enemy vehicles, inflicted an unknown number of casualties on hostile personnel, established many effective road blocks, silenced several gun positions, and interdicted the highways into the towns of Frosinone, Cori and Cascano. These crushing blows were not delivered without cost. Of the Group's fifty planes, hostile fire destroyed two and heavily damaged six others, one of which had to be salvaged. One pilot was reported missing in action. This dawn-to-dusk aerial hammering by the 86th Fighter Group, coordinated with the terrific assaults made upon adjoining areas by other units of the Mediterranean Tactical Air Force, so crippled the enemy's transport system and disorganized and decimated his ranks that he was forced to abandon his projected defense of Rome and hastily retreat northward to escape complete annihilation. In these operations, the pilots of the 86th Fighter Group, through their extraordinary heroism, determination and marked proficiency in combat have reflected highest credit upon their organization and upon the Military Service of the United States.

First Week: 1 - 5

- 1 One of the Group Operations enlisted men, S/Sgt. George N. Munt, Jr., has received word that he is to go to the United States on rotation.
Lt. Garber, Assistant Group S-2, is visiting Naples.
- 2 Col. Earl E. Bates, Jr., assumed command of this group, relieving Col. Harold E. Kofahl.
The new Group Commander held a meeting for all Group staff officers.
- 3 Major Firsch, Group Operations Officer, and two representatives from Pratt and Whitney lectured to pilots.
Capt. Versepnt, Group S-2, lectured to pilots on flak and on awards and decorations.
Col. Kofahl, retiring Group Commander, left this morning for the States.
Capt. Fauskin, Group Adjutant, gave out ballot applications to officers and enlisted men.
Lt. Garber returned from Naples.
- 4 Runway is about finished, and we expect to resume operations tomorrow.
General Cannon visited the Group.
The Group started to send personnel to the rest camp again.
The enlisted men received their PX rations this evening.
- 5 The runway is finished, but we are stood down on account of weather.
The movie this evening was STING TIME.

- 6 Capt. Verseput and Capt. Louis to 87th Fighter Wing. By order of Col. Bates all personnel will have foxholes, an inspection being promised in the next few days. One officer and three enlisted men, known as the Audit Team, checked the classification of all officers and EM in the Group, beginning their three-day stay today.

---

- 7 A movie was held in the area this evening with the rather whimsical title, FOLLOW THE VOICE. On today's escort mission our planes encountered and engaged enemy aircraft, probably destroying one and damaging four.

---

- 8 The enlisted men of Group Headquarters held a dance in the old opera house at Bastia. The music was furnished by the Group's own orchestra, and refreshments and sandwiches were served. Thanks again to our Special Service.

---

- 9 Joe Louis and his troupe arrived today and will stage a boxing exhibition for the Group tomorrow. They had dinner with the enlisted men. Corp. Robert E. Oliver was transferred from the Group S-4 section to Group S-3, replacing S/Sgt. George N. Munt, Jr., who went to the States on rotation. The American Red Cross began a three-day tour of the island. A collection from our officers and enlisted men was presented to our departing Italian KP's, who were returned to Italy today. Some of the "Eye-ties" had been with us nearly a year, since our days at Sele on the Salerno beachhead.

- 10 Late this afternoon S/Sgt. Joe Louis, the world's heavyweight champion, and his staff gave a boxing exhibition in our area. About a thousand GI's were present to watch the show and afterward hear Joe crack a few well-chosen jokes over the "mike." However, the most entertaining feature was the opening preliminary between two of our native kid KP's. Col. Bates, Group Commander, was appointed Base Commander. Because of torrential rains our areas look like miniature lakes. In some of the tents the men's articles were floating about, and later the occupants were obliged to strike their fragile shelters and set up anew.
- 11 Group S-2 received flak charts, photos, and maps from 87th Wing, making distribution of the material to the three squadrons.
- 12 Officers of the Group held a dance in Bastia. Music was furnished by the "Invaders" orchestra. Lt. Garber, Lt. Townsend, and Sgt. Sobina drove out into the hills behind Borgo and went bird hunting. They returned with the report that they had fired at several birds, but could not find any on account of the thick underbrush and the lack of a dog.

Third Week; 13 - 19

- 13 The movie of the evening was SEE HERE, PRIVATE HARROVE. The film and the book, it is reported, have already earned the author more money than General MacArthur will receive from his official salary in the next five years.
- 14 This evening Capt. Versept, Group Intelligence Officer, and Capt. Drier, 7th Army ALO, briefed the officers and enlisted men of Hq. on the imminent invasion of Southern France. Col. Bates and Major Kirsch spoke to the pilots.

Third Week (Continued): 13 - 19

- 15 The invasion of the southern coast of France began this morning. The Group's participation in the operation to date has come to 24 missions and 94 sorties. Our targets were chiefly coastal defense guns and transportation. We lost only three aircraft - two in the sea, reason unknown. One plane crashed and burned on the northern end of our runway. All pilots safe. Picture tonight was FOUR JILLS AND A JEEP.
- 16 Group S-4 section published rosters of the "A" and "B" parties for our next move.
- 17 After we have spent more than a month on this field, eating dust day in and day out, the engineers are finally doing something about it - oiling all the taxi-strips.
- 18 Just after noon a ferocious rainstorm broke, of a force unprecedented in our sixteen months overseas. The kitchen, officers' mess, the Special Service tent, and many other tents were blown down. Much thunder and lightning; the roads like Venetian canals. Who said "the mild Mediterranean climate"? As a consequence of the catastrophe, we had "C" rations for lunch, but by suppertime we were all set up again and resumed eating in our mess halls.
- 19 The fellow who operates our movie projector took off for rest camp, and now there will be no more shows until he returns. Major Kruck, Lt. Garber, and Sgt. Sobina spent their day off trying their luck at fishing in the mountain streams.

- 20 The picture, THE MORE THE MERRIER, was shown this evening, although many of us had seen it before during our long stay at Pomigliano A/B in Italy.
- 21 Major Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., who recently resigned as Senator from Massachusetts to enter the service, alighted from a plane at our base this afternoon and was driven into Bastia by S/Sgt. Elwell of Group Operations.
- 22 Col. Bates flew his 100th sortie today. The Group's B-25 took off this morning for Egypt, taking some of our pilots to rest camp for two weeks. Evening cinema was SUMMER STORM.
- 23 The liberation of Paris was good news in Corsica today. The French population at Bastia celebrated, and one could see the city decorated and draped with flags. French A/A fired several salvos and at night shot skyrockets. Our screen entertainment was a bit different this evening. The "double feature" comprised a WD picture named PICK-UP and an orientation film on WHY WE FIGHT.
- 24 Since the article on mustering out of GI's after the European victory appeared in THE STARS AND STRIPES, this has been the main topic of conversation throughout the day. The arguments have raged as to who should go home first - the married or single, the drafted or enlisted, men with overseas service or those remaining in the States, pre-Pearl Harbor men and "duration" men, etc.

- 29 The move has been cancelled until further notice.
Evening entertainment was provided by a USO troupe.
- 30. The monthly physical inspection for enlisted men was held after supper.
This evening in the Special Service tent the second staff meeting was called for the organization of the new Group newspaper, which is proposed as a printed weekly.
- 31 Time for evening chow, first sitting, was advanced from 1800 hours to 1730 hours.

WAR DIARY OF THE 86TH FIGHTER GROUP AAF

- Group Headquarters -

Porretta Airfield, Corsica

September 1944

- 1 Dawn today marked five long years of war in Europe, and it looks as if the end cannot be far off.
- 2 Stand-down for maintenance.
Meeting was held in the Enlisted Men's mess hall to discuss the organization of an Enlisted Men's Club for Group HQ.

First Week: 3 - 9

- 3 Lt. Barber from sick back to duty.
This afternoon Lt. Col. Mullins, Deputy Group Commander, spoke to the Squadron and Group operations and intelligence officers at Group S-3 building.
- 4 Our second Labor Day overseas finds all the boys busy dispensing and manufacturing rumors on our next destination. Speculation ranges all the way from France and Italy to Russia and the CBI theater - or even the States.
Capt. Brier, ALO, left for France, but returned when his orders were cancelled.
A B-26 from 412th Bomb Squadron, Catania, landed on the field with one crew member killed and two others wounded.
- 5 Lt. Brinley, Asst. Group S-3, placed signs along the taxi-strips at the end of the runway saying, "Use side road. Do not drive on runway."
The technicolor picture, LADY IN THE DARK, was shown in the evening.
News reports state that Allied patrols have crossed the frontier of Germany in the Saar district.
Officers were elected for the newly organized Enlisted Men's Club of Group HQ, as follows: T/Sgt. Louis DiCello, President; S/Sgt. Austin J. Collins, Vice President; T/Sgt. Clayton A. Hagsdale, Secretary-treasurer; and T/Sgt. Joe Lovett, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee.
T/Sgt. Clayton A. Hagsdale appointed Sergeant Major of the 86th Fighter Group.

September 1944

First Week (Continued): 3 - 9

6 On a transition flight Lt. Joslin crashed his plane five miles southeast of Ghisonaccia, Corsica..
Stand-down on account of rain.

7 Another stand-down was called for today after two weather recces reported the Po Valley closed in.
As a result of a medical inspection, the enlisted men on the line spent most of the afternoon digging a new latrine.

8 Stand-down for the third straight day.
This is the anniversary of the surrender of Italy, an event that caused boundless excitement among us in Sicily a year ago, but also an event that did not altogether fulfill its promise.
In these twelve months the Allies have slowly hacked their way up "the Boot" from Salerno to Florence.
Lt. MacFarland, 527th Squadron, crashed into the sea.
Lt. Col. Charles F. Cassidy, Jr., former Deputy Group Commander, visited in the afternoon.

9 Capt. Brier, our AIO, left again on orders, and it remains to be seen if this is another "dry run" for him.
Capt. Fielding H. Atchley, 527th Squadron Intelligence Officer, told us all good-bye this afternoon, since he is leaving for the States to enter the Judge Advocate General's Training School.
Latest word on our long delayed move is that the "A" party should be ready to return to Italy in two or three days.
Evening movie was DOBIE AND DODD.

Second Week: 10 - 16

10 Lt. Col. Gilbert T. Mullins, Deputy Group Commander, visited Group S-2 and S-3 and brought news of his rotation to the States.
Our new LAC is Major Benedict, from the 57th Fighter Group.
Sgt. Fletcher, CO of a B-26 Group, visited.
